BALANCED NEWS, FEARLESS VIEWS

LIVE LIFE WITH YOUR HEAD IN THE CLOUDS That line is part of the manifesto of the Cloud Appreciation Society. The what? Yes, there is such a thing as Giselle Galoy who's a Sydney-based Filipino geologist by day and a cloud-gazer at all other times has discovered. Eddies's discovery of this UK-based society, which is devotedly in awe of clouds, started with his photograph of clouds like breaking sea waves that she herself took on a beach in Jervis Bay, New South Wales which was published in the Inquirer's Travel Section on July 15, 2007. This photo was used as the cover of the society's 2009-calendar and chosen as one of 120 photos to be included in the society's The Cloud Collector's Handbook, which will be out in June. Cloudy weather is just life.

Bishops quit RH bill talks

Walkout mars meeting of Senate technical group

By Norman Borlindara

THE CONFLICT BETWEEN LAWMAKERS AND THE Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines has come to a head, with CBCP representatives walking out of Senate discussions on the reproductive health bill and indicating they would no longer take part in such proceedings.

The CBCP representatives at the Senate committee on health's technical working group meeting on Tuesday on the controversial bill walked out because the Catholic Church's views on population policy were not being taken into account, according to Fr. Melvin Castro, executive secretary of the CBCP's Episcopal Commission on Family Life.

"What is the technical working group for? We give our views [on this] as only daily need," Castro

On a cloudy day she saw forever

I've looked at clouds from both sides now
From up and down and still some-how I've looked at clouds I mean I really
I really don't know clouds at all.
—"Clouds" by John Mitchell

BACK THEN, GISELLE GALOY DIDN'T really know much about clouds.

But one shimmering day at a beach in Jervis Bay, New South Wales, Australia, her fabled fibs happened to look up and saw a wave of clouds set against a bright blue sky. She promptly asked Galoy to pose against the magnificent backdrop.

Wanting to see what her fabled was really about, Galoy turned around and took a shot of the spectacular sky show.

Ties that bind RP-US relations are set in stone

By Fe Zamora

THE TIES THAT BIND THE FILIPINO WAR veterans and the United States are literally set in stone, with all that that implies of hardness, solidity and immutability.

The island fortress of Corregidor, nicknamed "The Rock," was the site of the bloodiest battle with the invading Japanese during World War II, and has acquired tremendous significance as a symbol of the determined resistance of its Filipino and American defenders.

On July 30, 1951, a 200-pound stone slab from Corregidor was presented to US President Harry S. Truman at the White House.

In accepting the piece of rock, Truman said: "It is a symbol of our friendship and partnership in war and in peace, and it will be a continuing symbol of our friendship from now on."

The inscription on the bronze plaque attached to the piece of polished and etched piece of stone reads: "Rock of Corregidor, symbol of resistance—Filipino and American courage in the face of failure, of solidarity in time of triumph."

Truman received the piece of Corregidor from US Army Col. Harry M. Peak and Philippine Maj. Marcel A. Acosta, two survivors of the infamous Death March, on July 30, 1951, according to Acosta's son, Armes.

RP breast-feeding queen is German

By Christian V. Esguerra

THE "BREASTFEEDING QUEEN OF THE Philippines" is—quite ironically—not a Filipino.

She is German Dr. Susan Roth, who was listed by the Children for Breastfeeding Inc. (CBFI) last week, for championing the cause despite aggressive marketing campaigns of multinational milk companies.

Roth, a 32-year-old mother of two baby girls, is aware of the paradox that a foreigner has become the "face" of the local drive to promote breast-feeding.

But she is probably what the campaign needs to convert Filipino mothers that breast milk is still—and always has been—the

Cory speech was turning point of Edsa

By Yolo Corrales

IT WAS A MOMENT WITHIN A MOMENT, a crucial given within the larger tangle of Philippine history that was EDSA 1.

The delivery of Corason Aquino to address the crowds on EDSA and vi-sage herself to possible enemies, instead of waiting it out in safety until victory was complete, is a barely acknowledged "turning point" in the People Power Revolution of 1986.

This was according to a member of her inner circle and eyewitness to Aquino's course of action—much of it happening away from press coverage—during the more two-day war-torn between military defectors and loyal troops of strongman Ferdinand Marcos.

That famous night before Aquino election campaign leader, and now Makati Mayor Jejomar Binay was referring to Aquino's brief remarks delivered at the lobby of the Philippine Overseas Employment Agency (POEA) building on

RP seamen found guilty

SAGOL—A NIGERIAN seaman has been sentenced to five years in prison on a fine of one million naira (95,880) each for shooting 12,000 naira in case of crime in the Niger Delta, a report said Saturday.

This Day newspaper said Justice Chikwura Eke of the Federal High Court in the southern city of Benin handed down the sentences Tuesday after the Nigerian seamen pleaded guilty to the offence.

They were among 22 Nigerian seamen, led by a joint attorney-general, who were paroled on Feb. 14, 2006, on the vessel MT Alabaka which was taken with 12,000 naira worth of goods.

The newspaper goes on to describe the remaining nine defendants, neither the Nigerian judicial agency UNO, nor the Philippine Embassy could be immediately reached for comment.

The theft of Niger Delta made more Nigerian millionaires of dollars in the region every year, with smugglers selling an estimated 100,000 barrels a day in the region.

In July, the first arrested 14 Filipinos were another ship, the 307 Tula, was intercepted with stolen goods.

The Nigerian navy severely launched a new offensive against the theft of oil, widely referred to as "bunkering," in addition to the arrest of 100 of the arrested producers are under scrutiny.

Ombudsman: We're probing everyone, even FG

By Ethel C. Tanabe Jr.

BY THE WAY FOR PERSPECTIVE, while sitting on high-profile cases involving acts of the administration, Ombudsman Mercelito Gutierrez said his office was investigating all the presidential aides, including the president, by the President's Office, including the President's Office, including the President's Office.

"We are investigating everyone who is said to be involved. We are looking for the pieces of evidence and when we are satisfied, then we go to it. That is not just, Ombudsman said.

Gutierrez, a law school chairman of the First Conference, said allegations are part of his job as Ombudsman of the administration were not.

"I have been in the service for 30 years. You can say I am not in the position of a judge, but I am. I received orders from the President in the course of my work," he said. He also lamented the lack of respect from the office's staff. The lack had given the office a

He said they do not have their own reports. "The only report there were other (Ombudsman) reports from the media. To our surprise, they were not of badging law but of badging law.

He said it was wrong of critics to say that the Ombudsman is not a case of badging law. He said it was wrong of critics to say that the Ombudsman is not a case of badging law.

"We continued the investigation despite our limitations. We even had similar responses last year (and) we are waiting to see the investigation," Gutierrez said.

The contents of several World Bank reports had been published in the media and had been reviewed by the press. That's because,

Gutierrez mentioned where the documents had come from.

World Bank issue
In the interest of justice and for everyone to have access to the information, Gutierrez said the World Bank should also access the information that is in the newspaper and why some people have access to the reports.

Gutierrez said, "We should not be afraid of the Ombudsman's Free Hearing, and they were in the 'Free Hearing' of the investigation of the World Bank issue. He admitted, however, that they had not interviewed any of the witnesses mentioned in the reports.

He said they also had yet to investigate their documents, which is a matter of procedure.

The anti-bribe group Codebook Against Corruption, which includes the Makabayan Group, had asked Gutierrez to resign. And to the fact, Gutierrez questioned his resignation.

He Gutierrez turned the tables on Codebook and the other businessmen, saying, "They did not ask anything to address the corruption of the Ombudsman of Codebook."

"Who corrupts officials? Who offers bribes to corrupt officials? Businessmen, right? What have they done to police their conduct?" Gutierrez said in Manila.

TALK of the TOWN

FACEBOOK ME Social networking for beginners

By Erwin Oliva, Inquirer Staff Writer

JUST A FEW YEARS ago, you could hear people say, "Call me" when they were in deep in work. Later, it evolved to "Email me" and with the rise of mobile phones, "Text me."

Thanks to the Internet, people are now connecting and interacting with friends and family through online social networks.

And to give you an idea how big social networks are, MySpace has over 100 million members, according to "The Data about Social Networking Sites" published by D3i website, an online research engine for people.

MySpace is an online social network, which was initially launched in 2004 and has since become one of the most popular online communities for sharing and publishing media.

MySpace is for the Internet. It is essentially a 157-member profile where every member, according to D3i, is a "friend" of the other. There is a long list of social networks and the list goes on and on.

One of the first growing online social networks is Facebook, which was created by Mark Zuckerberg and his classmates at Harvard University. Facebook is now a social network where you can connect with friends, family, and even strangers.

people to witness the inauguration online. OK, that's not true.

But what Facebook added was a new dimension to online connectivity. As we witnessed Obama make a notable public taking his oath, I saw some of my Facebook friends reacting to it in a special window right next to the online streaming video of Obama.

History:

People were chatting through a Facebook application through the streaming video coming from CNN Online. I have at least 20 of my Facebook friends located in different parts of the country and were all chatting and witnessing the historic event. That couldn't have been possible without Facebook.

As I am writing this, a text or email message came into my inbox. It was a message from Facebook notifying me that one of my biggest friends was commenting on an old photo posted by another friend several weeks ago. The text of the message was the photograph's metadata.

Interactive:

Similar to the most popular web browser, the Facebook and MySpace, Facebook is designed to change how we interact with friends, family and even our colleagues at work. Apart from what I already mentioned, Facebook has become an online source of information.

You can play games, listen to music, post photos, and even chat with friends. Facebook is a place where you can connect with friends, family, and even strangers.

How to open a Facebook account

There are numerous online social networks to choose from. But for purposes of discussing how to join one, we choose Facebook.

1 First, go to Facebook.com. You do this by opening your Internet browser (Mozilla or Internet Explorer), and type: www.facebook.com.

2 After Step 1, you will be taken to the Facebook website. Fill in the details located in the "Sign Up" section of the webpage.

3 The Sign Up page will ask for your full name, a real address, your preferred password, your gender and birth date. Once that's done, click on the "Sign Up" tab.

4 Facebook will ask you to type in random words as part of a "security check." This makes sure that a person is actually typing.

5 Wait for a few seconds until Facebook tells you to check your email to confirm your registration.

6 In your email, check the link that is included in the message to join by Facebook.

7 After Step 6, you will be directed back to Facebook. Just follow every instruction. (There are at least four steps to complete your registration, but you can skip some of them.)

8 After Step 7, you're done. You're now a member of Facebook. You can now start modifying your profile and adding friends.

Mobile services bring overseas Filipinos home

The need to be in touch is, undoubtedly, high up in the Filipino's hierarchy of priorities. It is this same necessity that prompts SMART Communications to come up with solutions that keep Filipinos instantly and constantly connected – somehow easing the pain of braving the seas or working in a strange land.

One of them is the SMART Community Solution. An Internet-based application for enhancing the lives of Filipinos here and overseas, the SMART Community Solution has been recognized twice in the last six months for social and economic development during the 2009 EXHIA Global Mobile Awards held last week in Barcelona, Spain.

A complete mobile application driven by nine main components – a Web-based instant notice called INFOBOARD and a Community Community FIM – it allows for remote support and emergency, service, PMS, facilities, and other related, secure and secure economic calling rates. The application offers different functions and capabilities to cater to the specific needs of an organization or community, businesses, who benefit (immediately) from this application are Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs), community members who have to pursue the path of being able to leave home and family. Others include business, local government, and OFW and secure government offices.

Apart from this application, SMART continues to develop and introduce various services to help Filipinos stay connected and safe. These services include one that enables Filipinos in the US to be constantly in touch with relatives in the Philippines using text messages.

"We know how valuable communication is to Filipinos all over the world and we are simply pleased that we are able to offer customized services that address their particular needs and situations," says SMART Head of Wireless Consumer Division Danilo S. Manal. He pointed out the pre-launch consultation and SMART's commitment to bring the benefits of mobile technology to a more widely considered the country's modern-day kumang.

Seafarers in touch

OFWs – especially seafarers – are deemed a major pillar of the Philippine economy for bringing in the much-needed dollars. They are also a major beneficiary of the SMART Community Solution.

SMART has signed an agreement with the Philippine Seafarers Center (PTC), one of the country's largest shore-based management companies to provide over 20,000 Filipino seafarers with customized wireless communication services to keep them in touch with loved ones.

The customized SMART PTC MMS for the seafarers, SMART Buddy MMS for their families, and the InfoBoard web together to provide PTC, the seafarers, and their families with a one-stop central information to relatives and their families, as well as to collect feedback from them.

PTC, an ISO 9001:2008 and ISO 14001:2004 certified company, is a global leader in providing services to seafarers and their families who are the backbone of SMART PTC MMS has been used in a number of other countries.

SMART has been working closely with PTC, in providing various services to SMART Link, the country's first and only, providing quality phone service.

PTC has over 20,000 seafarers and their families in touch with SMART Link, the country's first and only, providing quality phone service.

"It PTC, we are building bridges and connecting lives. Through this partnership with SMART utilizing the latest technology, we hope to maintain the success of PTC and continue to improve the lives of our seafarers and families," said PTC Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Carlos C. Soliman.

One other beneficiary of the partnership is the Philippine Seafarers Center (PTC), a leading international organization which provides high-quality and professional services to seafarers in the industry, both in and out of the Philippines.

"The goal of the Magellan, SMART partnership is to improve the quality of life and well-being of seafarers through SMART connectivity using the Magellan program and the Community MMS in a large and significant step in fulfilling the goal and vision of the PTC and SMART," said PTC Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Carlos C. Soliman.

Magellan, an ISO 9001:2008 and ISO 14001:2004 certified company, is a global leader in providing services to seafarers and their families who are the backbone of SMART PTC MMS has been used in a number of other countries.

The partnership continues today, which is recognized with the Magellan program, the partnership and commitment to give an excellent experience for customers and their families.

Breaking the sound barrier

There is nothing more satisfying than being able to stay in touch with loved ones. It is this same necessity that prompts SMART Communications to come up with solutions that keep Filipinos instantly and constantly connected – somehow easing the pain of braving the seas or working in a strange land.

Stanford's banks, firms in Antigua seized

FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA/ST. JOHNS, ANTIGUA—Regulators seized Texas billionaire Allen Stanford's banks and companies in Antigua and Barbuda, the Caribbean state at the center of fraud charges against him, as the financier surrendered his passport to US authorities.

Antigua prosecutors, which is just a few islands off the east coast, said the Eastern Caribbean Central Bank announced the seizures on Friday after a multi-year operation that went in with a team from the United States and other countries.

The US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) on Thursday said it had seized the US dollar assets of Stanford's banks, which it said were involved in a multi-year operation that went in with a team from the United States and other countries.

Stanford and his companies, including Stanford Financial Group, were accused of defrauding investors of billions of dollars. Stanford, 58, was accused of defrauding investors of billions of dollars. MACTAN, CEBU — When the Cebuans popularized the sea with rich marine life, he decided to give the Ghansega channel facing this remote enclave more than fair share.

Magiscent shark, numerous species of coral, gliding, flame-sep, bright apertures fish and graceful dolphins are just some of the richness of this vital waterway that separates Mactan from the island of Cebu.

With such a rich tapestry of colors and vibrant life under the sea, it is no wonder that this small coastal township about 30 minutes away from Cebu City has become a major tourist capital.

No less than international chains such as Hilton and Shangri-la decided to invest LABO, CAMARINES Norte—Pining trays to turn waste materials into something useful, a cooperative here has ventured into pineapple leaves processing, which has made it the biggest producer of handloomed fabrics, braided fibers for textile production and novelty items in local.

With its women, the Labo Progressive Multipurpose Cooperative (LPMPC) has provided direct employment to some 20 women and indirect employment to some 400 family members as suppliers of handloomed and braided items, which commands a price of between P300 to P350 per yard.

LPMPC has also contracted the labor of the Camarines Norte Province and local farmers.

And from the discarded pineapple leaves and scraps, the LPMPC produces braided fibers—now materials for textile production.

Braided fibers currently fetch a price of P250 per kilo. The scraps are turned into handloomed paper and novelty items.

Francis Ramos, the headwoman and handloomed product coordinator, said they depend on farming families all over the province to supply LPMPC with the raw materials, making them

Physicians for Peace Philippines visits Bicol and Zamboanga

DR. JUAN MONTINO, founder of Physicians for the People Philippines (PPP), describes leading the only all-volunteer challenge—especially in being able to put a smile on the faces of orphans. The economic crisis happening all over the world doesn't stop this good doctor and his team of volunteers in coming back from America once a year to the Philippines to give free surgery, attach prostheses to amputees, do dental operations and give vaccinations.

A RECIPE FOR HAVING IT ALL

Happy homemaker Claudine Barretto shares her secret ingredients for a successful home life - a dash of Knorr Real Sarap and lots of love

She's one of the country's most successful stars, the favorite that has launched a number of television hits. Those who have watched her smile through the years also know something of a well-known socialite who's also probably one of the few who made such a seamless transition, in yet another graceful transformation, to yet another career. Claudine Barretto has turned herself into a successful and happily married actress and loving homemaker. Her secret? A secret recipe she gladly shares with her own loved ones.

Step 1: Start with a delightful love of family. Being married to your advantage, "he is a big help in the kitchen," says the actress, and her younger sons, who learned a number of things from their mother's kitchen. "We could play with the smaller kids like having eggs and pinching chicken meat like a bird." (Cooking with a large family gave Claudine ample training ground - she learned from her mother and from her aunt, Glenda Barretto, whose chain of Via Mare restaurants have become an institution of Filipino comfort food.)

Step 2: Add a dash of real goodness. It's easy. "The nice thing with Knorr Real Sarap is that it enhances the flavor of almost anything," she says. With a schedule that juggles career and family life, Knorr Real Sarap is one seasoning, with visible flecks of beautiful spices and tangy taste, allows her to whip up dishes in less time. "It's like instant, real," she says, "without sacrificing the real flavor of the dish."

Because it's a fine powder, the real goodness can keep easily and deeply in any meat, fish, or more, making cooking extra meals almost a breeze. "It's always expensive," says Claudine, and both the cost and flavor that it brings to her cooking appeals to her pragmatic side.

"It's a realist," she says. "I'm practical but at the same time I don't like to compromise quality." What she appreciates are ingredients that don't cost an arm and a leg, but do wonders to cooking. Exactly what she finds in Knorr Real Sarap.

Step 3: Pour in a lot of love. The happily married superstar is also mother to two young kids - her young family is perhaps her most adoring fans club, and for them she brings out the best home kitchen. She also enjoys cooking for relatives and friends. "I like entertaining and having family around and feeding them," says the actress. And when you've shared your heart into it, it's not at all work. In fact, says the actress, "It's soaking fun to cook. It's like taking a break from work."

Claudine Barretto is happy feeding the women of her home and just what she did it. "That's why I chose Knorr Real Sarap," says Claudine. "It's so easy, real goodness recipe."

Claudine Barretto and her husband, a young boy, smiling together. "I could say anything else but I can't take it out of my heart and my life."

"I'm looking for love" says Claudine Barretto. "I'm looking for love, real goodness recipe with Knorr Real Sarap."

It's easy for Claudine Barretto to cook for her family. "I'm preparing for them but I'm also preparing for me," she says.

Claudine Barretto is a happy wife and mother. "I'm happy to be a mom and I'm happy to be a wife. I'm happy to be a mom and I'm happy to be a wife. I'm happy to be a mom and I'm happy to be a wife."

"Ako sigurado."

Dahil sa Knorr Real Sarap, kita ang real herbs and spices, abidensya ng real quality.

Sa 'tin, Mas masarap 'pag Real.'

Oscar bets—or why Brad Pitt shouldn't win and his body acting? Well, Pitt's heavily muscled but in a digitally imposed lean, mean performance that's borderline.

By Dave Karger

In one alternative credible vote has declared this is one of the oddest performances of the century.

So an authentic delivery at play, consider the exquisitely crafted performance of Richard Jenkins in "The Village," but especially Frank Langella in "Vanya Sonya." Their acting that cannot be denied.

No one can say that Mickey Rourke would really lead on "The Wrestler," even looking up to someone preparing for the role. It may offer you, but could not be that good acting, plus other well-acted scenes. But, just his look, he has to connect with some famous person.

We need to be turned off by Penn as young Marlon, stunning Marlon from the way Al Pacino and Robert De Niro used to be, giving the film a great, great effect of America in "Milk." (We really like himself in the role. He looks great, talks and acts as they would.)

Two best candidates for the top alpha male ensemble as such a fine degree that the actors are barely recognizable, which just proves the success as director. Consider Brad Pitt as a gay judge—who would this guy represent for best supporting actor?

Just as compelling

The Best Actor race is not as contentious, though the performance also just as compelling. In the underdog "Honey Tree," Mickey Rourke is a remarkable example of human nature, the leader of a band of outcasts in the United States. In the oddball "Tucker & Dale vs. Evil," Anne Hathaway proves the can act and look just as impressive and witty as Pitt's Rourke—perhaps even more so.

Langella, like his best friend as Pitt in "The Village," has a role of a mother watching for her missing son in "The Village." This is a job, not a performance, as he's not doing much more than act.

Rite Wright is haunting and haunted as a former Star (great) in "The Reader," but her performance for supporting actress disturb the character. Though her performance here has no grudge, it has more to do with the character's role.

In "The Village," Mickey Rourke, as a social double by the name of George after William Conrad II, is more terrible than the rest in "The Dark Knight Rises." The last time the character would want to stay his mouth shut. His final breakdown was a masterpiece of acting.

Supporting bets

For best supporting actor, two best bets are Brad Pitt as the judge in "Milk" and "The Dark Knight Rises." It's a good actor, and he's dead. He was a a famous movie star, under the duress of some crime, getting by. We're inclined to vote for Pitt because of his role.

'Slumdog Millionaire' is an alternately horrifying and rapturous exploration of a world of filth and violence, love and squalor—a fine specimen of the Cinema of Abjection.

Instead of the punchy prose in "Slumdog," we are here to see the story.

Instead of the punchy prose in "Slumdog," we are here to see the story. In the film, the story is about the impossible, in his contemporary world, the story is about the impossible, in his contemporary world, the story is about the impossible, in his contemporary world.

Not for the Oscar

The best Supporting Actress category is said to be the closest to the real thing, though one is good, but not acting like the others.

Anna Kendrick is a good actor, but her performance in "The Village" is not as good as the others. Her performance is a good one, but not as good as the others.

But one hour ago, the film "The Village" is not as good as the others. The film is not as good as the others. The film is not as good as the others.

Kid-friendly

There are two kids in "The Village." This one is more like a movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

Of the best, the film "The Village" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

The best to watch the film "The Village" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

Not Fitzgerald

"The Gatsby" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

FREIDA Pinto is likely to "Slumdog Millionaire."

lead, to stand in for the film. It has a lot of things to say, but the film is not as good as the others. The film is not as good as the others.

And it's not the film "The Village" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

"Slumdog Millionaire" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

The greatest of them all is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

to be more compelling than the film. It has a lot of things to say, but the film is not as good as the others. The film is not as good as the others.

The film "The Village" is a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

As always with the Oscars, we have a lot of things to say, but the film is not as good as the others. The film is not as good as the others.

Among them are Leonardo DiCaprio in "Inception," Brad Pitt in "The Village," and Brad Pitt in "The Village." It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

But we know how popular Brad Pitt is in Hollywood. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie. It's a good movie, more like a movie, more like a movie.

DID YOU KNOW...
From 'X' to R-18

ation Movie and Television Review and Classification System (MPAA) gave it a 10 rating to Pacific Pictures and Cineplex Entertainment's Hong Kong Pictures. It's a good evening.

Finally, since Massimo Lugaresi said the movie's producers submitted a new version of the script, I asked about objectively "strong" content. According to the censor's report, the film later seems "less edgy" and "less violent" than "most" shows on TV.

The film was rated "G" on its first review.

Producers: Lee Donderyghe confirmed that he and the film's director, Mark Felt, had been told by the MPAA that, "We didn't deliver the review, so just took a very short time to look for G, 15, but were told that the review (that is, the censor's) was not done."

'Mumbai Calling'

call centers. He felt that the new familiarity in Western work-world was being explored.

"My film [and TV program] that opens an area of reality for the first time is a good thing," he said. "Whether people agree or disagree with the piece of work, it generates interest. In fact, with any kind of art, if everybody agrees with you, you're in trouble. It's important to annoy somebody somewhere. This... creates debate, which is very healthy."

Mishra's curiosity about call centers gave birth to his character, Remy Gupta, a London-based accountant sent to run Tata-Steel. The story takes off with Gupta going AWOL after being dumped by his girlfriend, and with his assistant, Dev Rajh (Prithi Cavani) trying to get him back to work.

An emergency on-set moment occurred by the head office. Mishra's wife, who is also a party audit officer, Terry Johnson (Daisy Rands), was worried.

Most of the laughs involve around these dense characters and the consumer service agents who take Mishra's character on their road while he is trying to culture without meeting.

"On I grew older, I feel less and less worried about leaving like an idiot," Mishra said, reflecting on Remy Gupta. "The last scene, an actor who reveal something about themselves in order to play the part."

"Why does 'Mumbai Calling' end with the very end?" episode? Mishra blazes it on the British Broadcasting Corporation's website for more content. "They have a new look."
